

CHUNG MEE

Chung Mee's paintings are thoroughly of animals. Those animals, however, are mysterious and magical.

They are mysterious because she does not paint them as they are and also magical for their distinctive colors. Animals in Chung mee's works like sheep and horses come as a thoroughly decorative object of rococo style to us.

Those animals that match pretty, beautiful and splendor tones are fully decorative for the object's beauty and warmth. It is another form for artistic completion of fashion reviving from fancy surface as well as a symbolic objet of beauty.
