

Severine DesLions

Born in France in 1972

'Ecole des Beaux Arts of Tours from 1990 to 1992

Lives and works in Tours France.

She has already exhibited in many places besides her native France including London, Bonn, Beirut, Dubai, and soon in South America. Since graduating Ms. DesLions has accomplished a great deal. With many exhibitions in many far-flung areas of the world, she has also drawn the attention of many art critics. Magazine coverage on her work is vast but mostly in foreign languages.

She has always been a great fan of comic book characters so it is no surprise that she created her own super hero, "Speed Boy," who traverses all her canvases helping to point out all the things in the world that must change in order to get us back to our lost humanity. Of course it is easy to see other influences in her work. Basquiat, who Severine holds up as the undisputed master of Street Art, is a strong source of inspiration in her art as are her other idols: Miro, de Kooning, Picasso and Karel Appel. Her artistic DNA also finds its roots in 'Art Brute,' primitive art and in particular the Maasai tribal art.

"I love above all what we humans are made of, but explains that we should not limit ourselves. We must fully release the positive sides of our natures. As Diogenes, it is in broad daylight that we look for a Man; but unlike the Greek philosopher mired in cynicism, she hopes to find him and make him discover his deep and caring nature – a challenge!! "
