

KIM YOUNG MOK

I draw the wire.

Leaving traces of my life is drawing pictures.

Before you forget your experiences in your head, replace them with a diary.

If you look at something somethingly, you experience a vision of it.

The wire dangling from the fence was neither artificial nor artificial.

A sad wire that was abandoned by humans and abandoned by humans.

Inverted by twisted wires, the image of the missing person was first experienced.

Free association When you hear something or see something, you associate it with the words or things associated with them and associate them with the actions of the mind.

I meet and cross several times a day.

One person in the crowd sees someone, meets and ties to each other, and gives a lot of give-and-take to each other. What are you living in so many people?

Also, do you feel sad, yearning, and happy with your family?

I am not a long life, but I imagine you look at them, and you visualize them freely from the canvas.

I want to talk to you in front of the picture. We hope to communicate with each other with mutual sympathy. And readers who steal diaries will remember me.
