"To be different and to create something remarkable, the artist must first learn to understand and appreciate the environment."

Born in South Korea, Chilsun You's prodigious talent in painting was evident since childhood. At the young age of 18, Chilsun You held her first solo exhibition at the then Daegu's Provisional Gallery and moved to New York to pursue her education at Parsons School of Design. She was first female Korean student from Daegu region to go to New York and join Parsons in the 1980s.

During her time in Parsons, she was actively involved with artist movement in Daegu, serving as an adviser for Kyung-Book University.

Chilsun You moved on to pursue her career at Seoul, South Korea where she was serving as an art director for the Merit Communications and was on-going member of artist society in Seoul, South Korea.

Since 1991, Chilsun You decided to enlighten students with her artwork as a teacher until 2001.

Now, she is serving as a member of OKAA (Orange County Korean Artist Association) where she continues to create artwork based on floral inspiration.
