I was inspired by the feeling night sky gives when I was doing the work.

Note

To explain verbally, according to Van Gogh who drew 'A Starry Night', inspired by 'night',

'night' represents infinity. I also wanted to express that.

Like such, the word 'infinity' seems to be limitless and contains hopeful meaning with lots of opportunities.

On the other hand, the word infinity makes me to look relatively small and as if I am locked under the night sky.

The darkness of night seems to be quiet. However, there exists dynamic movement within. Such serenity and movement are expressed through the touch of brush dipped in graphite and ink stick.

The touches of brush deepen the depth of darkness.

Black, the major color used in the piece, represents darkness.

For instance, it is believed that Van Gogh was also attracted to such effect of night and said that night had certain color within its darkness.

I also tend to think a lot about 'darkness' as it expresses different characteristics in different atmospheres.
